

35 mm SUMMILUX f/1.4

High-speed Wide-angle Lens

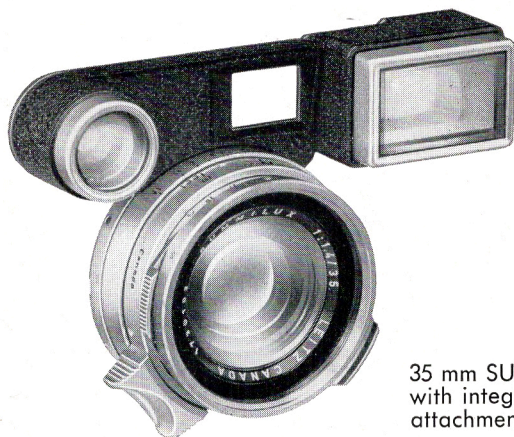

As a LEICA user, you can now own the world's fastest wide-angle lens — the new 35 mm SUMMILUX f/1.4. With it you will be able to photograph anything you can see. You will put new realism and life into indoor pictures (which nearly always call for a wide-angle lens) by using existing light — even with slow color film! The quality of your pictures will rise dramatically above the dull, flash-on-the-camera technique you were once tied to by slower lenses.

Thanks to LEITZ' designers, the new SUMMILUX offers not only high speed, but also outstanding image quality and corner-to-corner brilliance — even at f/1.4. Five of its seven elements are of thorium-free, lanthanum type rare earth glasses, many of which were developed in the LEITZ glass-research laboratories. Extra-large front and rear elements distribute light evenly over the whole negative; color correction, resolution and contrast are outstanding at all apertures.

When the goal is to produce the best that modern technology and materials make possible, neither lens-maker nor photographer may compromise. The 35 mm SUMMILUX f/1.4 is designed by and for those who will not compromise the effort to push forward the horizons of photography.
